certification in Special Education for all program participants. Participants who commit to their four-year program engage in a ~~one~~ year residency followed by a ~~three~~ year commitment in a ~~high~~ need school. Their teachers receive a master's degree from the Johns Hopkins School of Education, one of the top 10 graduate schools of education in the country, and become dually certified in either elementary education, secondary English or secondary math, and special education. This ~~qualification~~ certification in special education is crucial in providing access to qualified talent for this ~~ta~~ high-need content area. Through their program, they offer more comprehensive coursework and personalized ~~support~~ support than any other teacher training program. In the first year, their
